One Quarter Gone, Two To Go

Thigpen, Marian Wilkes

In this, the last issue of The Colonnade for the year I, on behalf of the staff, wish first to thank the people at the Union-Recorder office for their suggestions to and most of all for their patience with the staff (especially the editor) during the first guarter of publishing The Colonnade. I wish also to acknowledge the many kind remarks and words of encouragement which we have received from both faculty and students, and to thank the GSCW publicity officers and faculty members for their cooperation in helping us to get the news.

The staff has worked hard to give you your school paper as we promised in our first issue this quarter—our editorials have pertained to campus life: we have tried to cover all clubs, departments, and organizations in our news stories; and we have tried to write our stories correctly-but we realize that we are a long way from perfection.

Once again I ask you for your cooperation, more earnestly than before, for every issue makes me more aware that it is an impossibility for a few people to publish a paper all by themselves. have not received those letters to the editor but I am hoping for many next year from faculty and students alike. I welcome your suggestions for improvement of The Colonnade along with your opinion of campus happenings.

It has been a pleasure to serve you in this quarter, and my only hope is that next year we will do a better job. I speak for the staff in saying that we will do our best to fulfill our obligations to you and your expectations of us next yearwe will do everything possible to do better than you expect—but we cannot do the job alone.

The Colonnade Speaks

We are our college and what we are, our college

Like statements have been made before and will be made again.

Vacation time will soon be here. The majority of us will leave GSCW for a summer of work, fun, or we hope, a combination of both. A few of us will remain at summer school.

As walking advertisements of our college, we should conduct ourselves accordingly whenever we are away from her. Whether or not we realize it. our institution is judged by the out-of-school behavior of her students. We can make or break the reputation of our school. It is up to GSCW girls to uphold the traditions of which we are proud. It is to our advantage as students to insist that these standards be upheld.

Whatever we do or wherever we go, we want this vacation to be unsurpassed by others that we have had. We can spend this three months recess in such a way that GSCW will be proud to have us as daughters, or we can behave badly and tarnish her ideals. The choice is up to us as individuals, as a group.

How will we represent our college.

Letter To The Editor

(This letter was submitted to the editor of The Colonnade for publication as an open leter in the Henry Lambert, a poor young artist; but it took sincere hope that student opinion will stimulate even more to face the results brought about by her some action on this vital subject.)

We, the members of the Recreation Association Board, feel strongly that the activities program on our campus is too full to achieve effectively the objectives of good sportsmanship, class spirit and healthful living in which we all believe. We plan to curtail our own program next year, and wish to their set. suggest the following revisions in the traditional events—subject of course, to the approval of the organizations involved.

- 8. Omit Penguin Demonstration
- 9. Have Swimming Meet spring quarter. (The Swimming Meet and Penguin Demonstration will each be presented alternate years).
  - 10. Spring Play Day-no change.

We also feel that advisors of all organizations and departmental clubs should investigate the extra-curricular load of students working on special programs, recitals, demonstrations, off-campus trips, etc., and help regulate student activities so that the same girl will not be involved in working on daughter—"the Sow," by a mere slop in the face." more than one big project at a time.

Britannia Mews

By Margery Sharp

It took a lot of independence and courage for Adelaide Culver to defy her family by marrying hasty action.

She received quite a shock when she stepped from her sheltered, very conventional life in a would-be fashionable Victorian society to become "Poker-back" in Britannia Mews, a slum that once housed the horses and coachmen of her family and

However, such was not the case: someone had seen her when she pushed Henry Lambert down the stairs. It was Mrs. Mounsev ("The Sow"), and Adeaide was compelled to remain in the Mews to pay blackmail money.

She was freed from the evil clutches of "the Sow" by the coming of the second Mr. Lambert into her life. However, Adelaide found she had grown away from her former way of life so much ingt she, could not return; so she remained in Britannia Mews with the second Mr. Lambert.

The first Henry Larmberts puppets formed the back-bone of a very successful puppet theatre which the Lamberts ran in a newly fashionable Mews until their quiet deaths.

I agree with Dean McMahon's observation that the first part of the book was written much better than the last.

The change in Adelaide's character after the coming of the second Mr. Lambert was too sudden therefore not realistic.

Horses Leave-Enthusiasts Grieve

If you have seen some awfully sad people on campus, you can be sure that those people are GSCW'S famous horseback-riding "phines." Now they haven't broken any limbs-(that is most of them haven't). They are just unhappy because the horses will soon be leaving niw that summer is coming and the girls cannot ride these "wonderful" nags.

You can see girls hurrying down to the woods every day, and you know that they are going riding, for characteristically enough, they are wearing jeans or jidphurs, They rush down with high hopes of riding Dusty or Scatter-(these are not nags). You see, with so little time remaining in the quarter, everybody wants a good horse that can make the ride enjoyable.

But the trouble is—those brilliant horses won't cooperate. The only explanation is that those creatures know they are leaving soon-and they want everybody to know they are not sorry. Why, they are celebrating.
